The Process

1. You enquire and we book you in based on your due date.
2. Baby arrives! Send me a message and we arrange your session date
3. Shoot day
4. After your shoot I get to work editing and perfecting your gallery
5. You receive your gallery and pick your favourites.
6. You download, love and share your finished images
7. Upgrades available if you would like more images and beautiful fine art prints

THINGS TO CONSIDER BEFORE YOUR SESSION;

MILK DRUNK: To have a sleepy baby for our photoshoot try to keep your newborn awake for at least an hour before you arrive. If you can give your baby a feed just before coming that would be great, but please don't worry if you can't, we can stop for feeds at any time.

HEATING: The studio will be warm! So consider what you are wearing so that you are comfortable. Baby needs to be nice and warm so they sleep and settle better. We will also undress baby down to a nappy or babygrow to be able to take photos of their little legs and feet.

NAPPY CHANGES: There's plenty of time within our session for changes as and when they are needed. Please don't worry if there are any accidents, on either you or me, my blankets or bean bag, I do not mind as I have extras.

POSES: I only do “Baby led” posing, this simply means I won't force your baby into any position they find unnatural. I let them take the lead and I move with them to get the most organic photos. This is your session and it will be unique to you and what they want to do. I'm a prop free photographer, so only the softest of blankets and throws will be used. Focusing solely on them. However if you have a special cuddly you want photographed with baby be sure to bring it along.

WHAT TO WEAR: Dress babies quite simply, no need for an 'outfit' as such, as it's a nice opportunity to capture how new they are, baby grows etc.

Simple and neutral colours and tones; textures such as knits and linen always look great too.

Whites, creams, greys, blushes and other light tones that complement baby's skin are a great option. Small patterns for girls or mums look beautiful in photos. I have a selection of newborn outfits that we can use for the session.

WHAT TO EXPECT

I aim for our sessions to be nice and relaxed, we go at you and your babies pace and can stop at any time for feeds, nappy changes and cuddles.

We will have baby portraits as well as family portraits and can of course include any siblings your new baby may have.

You should expect your session to last around 2 hours. It will be a relaxed morning at my cosy studio capturing your new little love.

WHAT TO WEAR

Newborn Client Wardrobe;

I have some neutral pieces we can dress your baby in, to keep your images simple and timeless and so you don't need to worry about choosing baby outfits.

I also have a selection of beautiful, soft blankets.

What you should wear;

It's important to plan what Mum, Dad and any siblings are wearing for the shoot.

I suggest you keep to a neutral palette as well, so that you compliment your baby and the focus is on them. Soft knits add texture. Small patterns can look beautiful.

Ultimately, make sure you are comfortable. Feel free to message me if you want some help deciding.

Remove watches, and Mum's remember your hands and nails will be in photos, so make sure you've removed old polish and had a tidy!

Emma - Lilah's Mummy

"We had such a wonderful newborn photoshoot experience. From start to finish Aby was understanding and patient. The photos are absolutely beautiful - every detail was captured so perfectly. We're beyond happy with how they turned out. Thank you for creating such special memories for our family."

THAT'S YOU ALL SET!
